

GOING TO

„Going to“ is used to tell somebody about your plans or what you intend to do:

I´m going to Australia for my holiday.
 She is going to take me to hospital.
 We are going to have a party tomorrow.
 They are going to play tennis next Saturday.

This is how you ask someone what their plans are or what they intend to do:

Where are you going to play tennis tomorrow?
 Are you going to drive to the cinema?

Fill in the missing words:

Ralph is going to do the shopping with his mother.

My parents are going to see our grandfather in hospital.

Claire is going to have a party this week.

Is Jeff going to play football with John?

My friends are going to play cards in the bar.

Is Howard going to bake a cake ?

Sally is going to go to the Cinema.

Write down some sentences of your own using „going to“:
